Lorenzo Ghiglieri specializes in bronze renderings of classic, moving scenes, and he now captures the powerful final seconds of an edge-of-your-seat horse race in "Photo Finish."

As a group of horses and their jockeys reach the final few meters of a passionate race, all eyes are on the leaders. Even the horses know that every inch counts as they strain their powerful muscles to reach further, faster, stronger. They are a picture of perfect aerodynamic form, with riders hunching low to become one with the horse.

Lorenzo Ghiglieri sculpted the “official” American Bald Eagle, a permanent part of The National White House Collection.
